CIVIL SERVICE BOARD AND THE REGENTS.

JOHN R. SLEICHER DIFFERS WITH CHANCELLOR

CURTIS OVER THE INSPECTORSHIPS. eaking of the controversy that has acisen between the State Civil Service Commission and the Regents, John R. Sleicher, the only Republican member of the day: "I have always been, since the inception of the Civil Service Reform movement, its hearty advocate and supporter. I appreciate what Chancellor Curtis has so nobly done for the progress of that movement, but when he holds, as he does in this Regents' matter that open competitive examinations cannot be de-mended upon to fill such places as Regents' inspectormps, I differ radically and wholly with him. argument that the places partake of a 'confidential' ases in making applications before our board for the sfer of places from the competitive to the nonompetitive schedules. To agree with him would be agree with the strongest opponents of Civil Service eform, for the only real argument against that reform is that it is impracticable, and that is what Mr. Curtis says it is, as applied to the inspectorships in his department."

"Now, as to the facts," added Mr. Sletcher. "Proessor Dewey, representing the Board of Regents, first asked us to place three inspectors in the non-con etitive schedule. Finally he admitted that one of he three might properly be appointed by the open-competitive method. The remaining two, he said, he ved would not enter into competition for the places, but at our last meeting the father of one of two said his son was entirely willing to be examined and wanted the competition at once, if it was to be ordered, and so it was ordered. I honestly believe that Mr. Curtis has not fully examined into the melits of the case. On any other theory his position in this matter seems inexplicable to me. We have offered to have examination papers prepared, subject to the scrutiny of Professor Dewey himself, so that they could be specially applicable to the requirements of the situation, but even this has not been sufficient. We have told him that if open competition did not secure the right kind of men we would relax the requirements of the law, if necessary. But he still insists that there shall be no competition. I think that the State Board is right in insisting on the enforcement of the statute and believe time will prove it to be right." to be ordered, and so it was ordered. I honestly

CONTROLLING THE GERMAN OIL MARKET.

ALLEGED AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE ROTHS-CHILDS AND THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY.

Berlin, June 16.-Baron von Berlepsch, the Minister of Commerce, is now engaged in an investigation of the coal oil trusts, which, according to the assertions made by the German retailers, aim to supplant the latter in their business. The retailers, in the formal charges which they have submitted to Baron von Berlepsch, declare that the Paris branch of the Rothschild family, who own the Russian oil monopoly, and the Standard Oil Company of the United States have entered into an agreement by which the Standard Oil Company is to control the German market. With this object in view, the latter company is said to have purchased all the petroleum steamers running between German ports and the United States, and is declared to be forcing the German and Dutch importers to form stock companies under the control of the Standard Oil Company, which company is now said to regulate the price of coal oil in Germany, and is reported to be threatening to erect tanks in the larger cities in order to sell oil direct to the consumers. The German reobtain the supplies of oil necessary to the conduct of their business. But, it appears, the Rothschilds, in accordance with an agreement with the Standard Oil Company, refused to supply the demands of the German retailers, thus, it is alleged, putting the latter into the power of the Standard Oil Company.

The German retailers have appealed to Baron von

Berlepsch, asking him to make a rigid inquiry into Mrs. this matter, and to see that justice is done to the German interests. It is understood that if the charges M. he proved to be well founded, stringent measures will be adopted.

The foregoing cable dispatch is declared to be un founded by officers of the Standard Oil Trust. William Mrs. W. H. Smidt, Mrs. T. McKee Brown, Mr. and Rockefeller referred a reporter yesterday to James McGoe, president of the Devoe Manufacturing Com-pany and one of the Standard Oil trustees. Mr. McGee said: "The Standard Oil Trust has entered into no agreement with the Rothschilds for the control of coal oil in Germany. Such a statement is false. The Standard Oil Trust is not trying to control the sale of oll in Germany, nor is it interfering with the German companies. The Standard Oil Trust has not bought

LAUNDRIES ATTACKED BY WOMAN STRIKERS. London, June 16.-This city is watching with much interest a strike of laundresses. Three hundred of them held a meeting in North London early this morning, and, after some speech-making, voted to strike. They insist that they will be doing a fair day's work if they remain at the washboard eight hours a day and demand 42 pence a day for their work. These demands are considered excessive by the employers. The strikers, enraged at the fact that all the laundresses of North London did not join with them in the strike, to-day marched in a body to the places where other laundresses were at work, and, after smashing the windows, dragged the non-strikers away lines. The police were powerless to prevent this demonstration upon the part of the strikers, who evidently had the entire sympathy of the crowds who watched the wrecking of the laundries.

Santiago de Chili, June 16.-It is officially annou here that the Presidential squadron of warships bombarded Pisagua on June 8 for three hours, and that Iquique met with a similar bombardment on June 9. Continuing, the official report says that a detachment of sailors and troops landed from the Presidential squadron on June 10, occupied Tocopilla and collected the duty due President Balmaceda's Government on the sattpetre then being loaded at that port. From Tocopilla, still according to the official announcement, the Presidential vessels steamed to Antongasta and non-barded that port also. The Presidential squadron afterward occupied Chanaral, and, after spliding the guns of the insurgent batteries, released a number of half-starved prisoners held in custody by the insurgents on account of political offences.

The foreign and mercantile classes are weary of the war and heartily desirous that one side or the other will soon obtain the upper hand.

THE PRINCE'S NAME HISSED IN WALES. HOSTILE DEMONSTRATIONS AT A LECTURE AT CARNARVON-SIGNIFICANT LETTERS

IN LONDON PAPERS. London, June 16 .- The popular feeling aginst the When the House met this afternoon sir Hestor Lang-vin read a statement which he said had been entrusted to him by Mr. Abbott, it having been deemed unnecessary by the Governor-General to take action until after men, however, no sooner heard the first strains of the familiar air than they raised a storm of hisses which almost drowned the noise of the band.

At seven religious meetings held in various parts of the country yesterday the Prince was roundly de-nounced for the share he took in the baccarat scandal. At the Methodist Conference now being held at Leeds the visat to Tranby Croft was classed as a "gamblers' orgie."

In a letter published to-day in "The Pall Mall Gazette," the writer asks why a captain in a household regiment, who is wanted by the police in relation to the Cleveland-st. scandal, who is now living in Tunis, should have been allowed to resign when Sir William fordon Cumming was dismissed from the Army for his share in the Tranby Croft scandal.

As an evidence of the attitude of the press and the public on the question of royal prerogatives, a letter, which is published in to-day's issue of "The Standard," which is a sturdy Conservative organ, may be effect. The writer of this letter calls attention to the fact that during the royal picnic at Virginia Water, on Saturday, some of the party, including members of the family of the Prince of Wales, violated the law relative to the "close season" of fishing by fishing in those waters. The writer calls upon the local anthorities to prosecute the lawbreakers under the statute, and not to exempt from punishment those members of the royal family who may be shown to have violated the law. The fact that this letter is published by "The Standard" goes far to show the feeling that has been aroused by the actions of the Prince.

The executive committee of the None Council has passed a resolution deploring the fact that gambling and betting are prevalent in English society.

"The Telegraph," in an editorial approving Mr. Stanhope's statement in the House of Commons yes terday in regard to the baccarat case, says it hopes that the last has now been heard of the painful story which has engressed far too large a share of public

"The News" says: "We venture to say that the Prince Wales's new departure in substantially apologising to Parliament and to the country exhibits a just deference to public opinion and will dispose of the whole matter. The pain which the unpleasant process must have cost the Prince will count as a part of his expiation with every generous count as a part of his expiation with every generous mind. The fact of an ill-assorted companionship of years and dignities on the stool of repentance, though it is an honor for Levett, must be an additional annoyance for the Prince of Wales.

"The Chronicle" cavils at the Government and the War Office for providing a cushion to soften the Prince's fall. Instancing the case of a private who was degraded for shielding a comrade who stole a trifle while drank, "The Chronicle" asks: "Why should a field marshal, the Prince of Wales, he treated differently! We get nothing in the shape of military benefit from placing roval persons in coveted posts in the army. The least we expect is that they remember that they wear the Queen's uniform."

GENERAL PUTNAM'S CAMPING GROUND,

RELICS WELL PRESERVED OF REVOLUTIONARY TIMES.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: The old camp of Putnam's Brigade in the porthern part of the town of Redding, Conn.-probably the best example of the camping places of the American Army of the Revolutionary War now remaining-is situated on a the two principal north and south valleys that are the distinguished topographical feature of the town. The old by-road by which it is reached, long neglected and disused, was closed up many years ago, and the old, secluded Idlewild-a safe and retired place, yet a commanding one-remained undisturbed and intact for 112 years. Some two or three years ago the Legislature of Connecticut made an appropriation for the improvement of the tract of land containing the camp. consisting of some fifty acres, more or less, under the name of the Putnam Park. The old road has the name of the Putnam Park. The old road has been respensed, the property fenced with a well-laid, durable stone wall, an interesting principal etrance constructed and another of subordinate importance, a ports of the departments were read and accepted. nument erected on a rocky 'moll near the entrance. monument erected on a rocky inoli near the entrance, some avenues laid out, one old fireplace "restored" from its own debris—the others, cleared of the entangling brush, lie in heaps at regular intervals just as they have fallen—and a model log cabin stands in a little coppice outside of the park near the entrance, suggestive of a kind of keeper's lodge. The improvements seem to have been directed principally to the retention of the natural features and emphasizing them with embellishments characteristic of the time, the place and the circumstances. It is yet unfinished, the place and the circumstances. It is yet unfinished, but even now it is a favorite drive for the people of Redding, Bethel, Danbury, Newtown and other places, and when completed and more widely known will command a more general interest. Visitors from a distance will reach it most easily from Danbury or from Bethel. On Wednesday, June 17, the local military company of Danbury, the Putman Phalaux, the Hartford Putman Phalaux, and crowds of people will hold a celebration at the camp-ground. S. C. He took a considerable share in making the history of one of the South American Republics. Rumor says of him that at one time he was not merely Lord High Admiral of its fleet, but Generalissimo of its Army as well, a divided duty which may, however, be regarded as sayoring of exaggeration.

President G. Stanley Hall, of Clark University, de livered the orotton on the subject of "Education." President Hall said:

President Hall said:

Education, the fil them efor this season and for this cocasion, is the one thing in which nearly every one is a believer. Men differ in politics, religion, wealth, culture, rank and race, but are practically one in their faith in the power of knowledge to prevent a lapse to barbarism and to insure general progress and individual success. This is time not only in our own country and among all civilized races, but even in remote lands, until lately almost barbarons lands. It is not strange that so wast and powerful an institution should become of itself an object of awe, love and pride: that we should love to rehearse its impressive statistics: that there should be rivalry in mechanical uniformity and in excellencies like attendance, punctuality order and percentages; that in Austria and Russia teachers should be proud to wear the school uniform as Government officials. It is too little realized that an agent so powerful for good is no less powerful for evil, and that this is especially the case in our own country, where supervision is so little professional and teaching so little skilled that one-fourth of our teachers leave the business every year.

The effects on the health, etc., of pupils of some of the methods of school life were set forth by the speaker and the question was discussed, how are all the possible evils connected with education to be remedied. One answer was that there must be the closest study of and a better adaptation to the nature wilson Hall, the new physical laboratory at Brown University, was formally occupied by President Andrews to-day in the name of the corporation. It has three large recitation rooms, two laboratories, two workshops, a library and all the appliances necessary for such a building. It is the gift of George F. Wilson, who was a man to whom the community is greatly indebted for many enterprises. He had few early advantages. It was he who, with Professor E. N. Horsford, founded the Rumford Chemical Works. The university conferred upon him the honorary degree A. M. in 1872, and when he died in 1883 he left Brown $100,000 for a building to be devoted to scientific study. Dr. Andrews spoke of the advance in scientific studies in accepting the building and said the final outcome of this movement would be the equipment of a school of applied science. Ellory Wilson, son of the donor; Professor Blake, Professor E. N. Horsford and Mr. Boardman, of Boston, all made brief addresses.

E. N. Horston and L. F. Horston and L. F. Horston and L. Liewellyn, first; Walter S. Reynolds, second; Arthur J. Llewellyn, first; Walter S. Reynolds, second; Mitting, Vt., and William D. Johnston, of Kalamazoo, Mich., received honorable manufactures.

At the annual meeting of the trustees of Colgate University, held to-day, the following communication was received from the President of the Board.

Gentlemen: For many years it has been my purpose to make some provision for this university. The accompanying document, which is submitted for your approval, is the outcome of this intention. It is a source of gratification to me that I have been permitted to accomplish my purpose during my life. While the phraseology of this instrument is not such as I would have chosen, it was necessary in order to secure the benefits of the statutes of the State allowing accumulations for certain purposes. No conditions have been imposed as to the use of the income to be paid to the University by the custodians of this fund, except such as are implied the custodians of this fund, except such as are implied

The document referred to was then read. Stripped of its legal phraseology, this document, executed by Mr. Colgate April 27, 1891, transferred to Colgate University the sum of $1,000,000, represented by approved securities, at their face value, on the condition that they be held in trust for the university by these trustees: Edward O. Carpenter, Gardner Colby and James C. Colgate; one half of the net income to be annually paid over to the university for its current expenses, the other half, in accordance with the provisions of certain statutes allowing accumulations for certain educational purposes, to be accumulated by the trustees until the fund shall, in the opinion of the regents, be sufficient for the purposes referred to in the deed of gift. The fund thus created is to be known as "The Dodge Memorial Fund," as a tribute to the memory of the lab Ebenezer Dodge, president of Colgate University and the life-long friend of Mr. Colgate. In order to prevent too sudden expansion only $15,000, the income, is to be paid to the university the first year and $20,000 the second.
